*For complete talk group ID listings, trunking radio system users, and a detailed explanation of how trunking works, ask for POLICE CALL, available at your local RadioShack store! Also ask about the new POLICE CALL CD-ROM!

□ How to use this guide

The data in this guide is listed alphabetically by state. The example below of a trunked system in Alabama shows:

The Agency name (often local agencies, such as municipal police and fire departments, share space on one system). The system's call sign. Then, the transmitter sites. Finally, the frequencies used by the system.

MOBILE COUNTY OF WNUX634 BAYOU LA BATRE, CITRONELLE, MOBILE, WILMER 856.2625-1, 857.2625-2, 858.2625-3, 859.2625-4, 860.2625-5, 854.9625-6, 855.2375-7

In this example, the numbers following the frequencies indicate this is an EDACS® system and the frequencies must be entered into the scanner in the sequence shown.

Systems not marked as EDACS should be assumed to be Motorola, although this may not always be the case.

"Fill-in" sites have generally been removed from the list. Refer to POLICE CALL for details. Digital (unmonitorable) systems are either marked as such or have been removed.

Many systems may be licensed but not yet on the air. Also, some agencies use private trunked radio systems (known as SMRs). These are listed when known.

The most important information you will need once you program system frequencies is talk group IDs. Thousands of talk group IDs can be found in the Police Call frequency and trunking guide, available at Radio Shack stores nationwide. Also ask about the new Police Call CD-ROM!

Large multi-transmitter site trunking systems use several control channels. Generally, because this guide breaks down systems by transmitter site, you should program your scanner with all frequencies licensed to a site (and call sign as shown). Some systems are simulcast, meaning the same frequencies (or a subset of frequencies) are used over a wide area. You only need to program these frequencies once to hear all communications on such a system. Occasionally, system managers swap around frequencies between sites to provide the best system performance.

Check the web site www.trunkscanner.com as well as other online resources, Police Call, and hobbyists.
